TOP SELLING POINTS

Joe Cassidy brought County Clare hospitality to Suisun Valley.

Joe arrived from County Clare in 1976. Bally Keal is an 80-acre estate with a winery, brewery, distillery, and gathering rooms on one property. The greeting is Cead Mile Failte, one hundred thousand welcomes. He is the founder. He is not the winemaker of this 2021. Adrian Guerrero joined as winemaker and brewer in 2024, after this vintage was already in bottle.

Blocks B and C. Forty-four acres of Clone 337.

The official 2021 Estate Cabernet page is exact: Blocks B and C, 44 acres planted to Clone 337, chosen for full ripeness and rich, intense flavor. Suisun Valley sits against the Vaca range to the west and is cooled by winds from the Sacramento-San Joaquin River Delta. Suisun is a Patwin word meaning where the west wind blows. Alluvial soils, deep roots, canopy thinned each spring. This is the estate Cabernet, not the Heritage Vine Clone 7 bottling from Blocks A and B.

JOE CASSIDY

County Clare · Suisun Valley · Cead Mile Failte

Joe arrived from County Clare in 1976 with a few tools on his belt. He delivered pizzas for an Irish cousin in San Francisco, then built a residential development firm in the Bay Area. The estate in Suisun Valley is the house he wanted guests to walk into: winery, brewery, distillery, and gathering rooms on eighty acres. The name is Gaelic. Bally from baile na, place of. Keal for villages or farmsteads. The greeting over the door is Cead Mile Failte, one hundred thousand welcomes. Ogham stones carved in Ireland to spell Bally Keal sit on the grounds and on the label. The photograph on this page is Joe at the estate doors, hard hat on, Century Builders polo. He is the founder. He is not presented as the winemaker of the 2020 or 2021 Cabernet. Adrian Guerrero joined that cellar in 2024.

2021 IN THE GLASS

The official 2021 Bally Keal Estate Cabernet Sauvignon note, from the winery's own 2021 product page: deep, dark, and ruby. It opens with rich aromas of cassis, boysenberry, red raspberry, and a hint of warm vanilla. On entry, sweet black cherry unfolds into plum and black currant. Full-bodied, with balanced fine-grained tannins, and a long finish that ends with a kiss of sweet French oak. Estate vineyard: Blocks B and C. Forty-four acres of Clone 337. That is the 2021 note. Do not borrow the 2020 oak regime onto this vintage. Decant about 30 minutes. Serve 60 to 64 F.
