TOP SELLING POINTS

Adrian Guerrero trained under Jeff Cohn, then came home in 2024.

Adrian grew up in Vacaville picking pears with his grandfather. He studied enology at Fresno State, then worked Rockpile in Dry Creek, Silver Eagle in Russian River, and Gary's Vineyard in the Santa Lucia Highlands under Jeff Cohn. After a turn as assistant brewer at Jackrabbit, he joined Bally Keal as winemaker and brewer in 2024. His brief is purity of fruit and gentle cellar work. This 2024 Sauvignon Blanc is a first-vintage white under that hand.

Sonoma Valley on the label. Suisun Valley at the door.

The estate sits on eighty acres in Suisun Valley, with 62 acres of organically farmed Cabernet. This bottle is not that Cabernet. It is labeled Sonoma Valley Sauvignon Blanc. Citrus and herb, not a grassy New Zealand copy. The house is Irish hospitality. The appellation is the climate. San Francisco Chronicle Wine Competition Gold on this exact 2024.

ADRIAN GUERRERO

Vacaville · Fresno State · Jeff Cohn · Bally Keal 2024

Adrian grew up in Vacaville picking pears with his grandfather. Mint, sage, and summer fruit from the family garden are the smells he still names. A college fascination with fermentation sent him to Fresno State for enology. Jeff Cohn put him on serious sites: Rockpile in Dry Creek, Silver Eagle in Russian River, Gary's Vineyard in the Santa Lucia Highlands. Those years taught him to chase flavor without burying fruit. A turn as assistant brewer at Jackrabbit added cellar patience. He came home to Suisun Valley in 2024 as winemaker and brewer at Bally Keal. The photograph on this page is Adrian in the cellar with the house whites and a Cabernet. This vintage is his.
