TOP SELLING POINTS

Matt Austin. Punk guitar, tax law, then the cellar.

Highest vineyard in the AVA. Shallow silt over basalt.

Grosgrain Vineyard sits at 1,400 feet on the Oregon side of Walla Walla, in the SeVein development. Shallow wind-blown loess over cracked volcanic basalt. Brutal wind. Tiny berries, thick skins. Decanter called 2022 the coolest, longest Washington season since 2011.

MATT AUSTIN

Northwest Wine Academy · Dunham Cellars · Grosgrain Vineyards

Matt used to play punk guitar, then practiced tax law, then hated it. In 2014 he and Kelly left California for the Pacific Northwest. He enrolled at the Northwest Wine Academy in Seattle, worked Woodinville cellars, and took a cellar master job at Dunham Cellars that brought them to Walla Walla. Kelly was a fashion designer in Los Angeles. She designed the barcode-stripe Grosgrain label, a nod to the ribbed fabric that looks like vineyard rows. They won the first five acres at auction. The 80-acre Grosgrain Vineyard on the Oregon side followed. This bottle is the first Cabernet Sauvignon from 100 percent estate fruit. Matt made it. Kelly designed it. James Suckling put 96 points on the 2022.

2022 IN THE GLASS

James Suckling on the 2022: earthy mineral notes of iodine, leather and red fruit. Medium-bodied. Fresh, crunchy and delicious, with very fine, succulent tannins. Bright red currant, ripe mulberry, cedar box, toasted spice, and a streak of crushed pencil shaving. Not a heavy Washington Cabernet. Serve a little cool.

75% Cabernet Sauvignon, 13% Merlot, 12% Cabernet Franc · 22 months in French oak · 39% new French oak · 13.6% ABV · 100% estate fruit

PAIRING AND SERVICE

Herb roast lamb rack with root vegetables · Wild mushrooms with thyme · A Saturday roast that does not need a steakhouse speech
Serve near 60 to 62 F in a Bordeaux glass. The tannins are fine. A short decant if you want the iodine and leather to catch up with the red fruit.
