Carlo Ferrini is Gambero Rosso's Winemaker of the Year.

Tommaso Cavalli asked Ferrini to walk the San Leolino ground in 2000. Ferrini, Gambero Rosso Winemaker of the Year in 2000 and Wine Enthusiast Winemaker of the Year in 2007, planted international grapes on galestro instead of defaulting to Sangiovese. Gioia Cresti runs the vines. The 2022 Le Redini is still that Ferrini house blend: Merlot for breadth, Alicante for Tuscan snap.

Panzano's golden valley. Thirty-five thousand bottles.

Le Redini is 90 percent Merlot and 10 percent Alicante from organic parcels in Panzano at 400 meters and Florence at 100 meters. Native yeast, at least three weeks of maceration, 14 months in barriques and tonneaux. About 35,000 bottles. This is the Merlot bottle of the house, not the Cabernet flagship Cavalli.

TOMMASO CAVALLI

San Leolino · Panzano · horses and wine

Roberto Cavalli bought the San Leolino property in the early 1970s as a Chianti refuge from Florence. He named it Tenuta degli Dei for his German shepherd, Didone degli Dei, so every horse born on the farm would carry that suffix. Roberto died on 12 April 2024. Tommaso has lived on the estate since 1989. In 2000 Tommaso asked Carlo Ferrini to look at the soils. They planted Merlot, Cabernet, Petit Verdot, Cabernet Franc, and Alicante on galestro at 400 meters, then added a Florence parcel on clay. The cellar sits inside the Pieve di San Leolino, a ninth-century Romanesque church. The photograph on this page is Tommaso tasting from barrel. He still breeds trotting horses on the 70-hectare farm. Le Redini is the wine he pours when the table wants Merlot that still tastes like Panzano.

2022 IN THE GLASS

Antonio Galloni (Vinous 95, July 2024) wrote that the 2022 Le Redini is superb, deep and packed, with bright acids in a hot year: blackberry, gravel, crushed rocks, incense, licorice, and mocha. A dollop of Alicante in the blend works. Full-bodied, opulent, one of the most distinctive wines being made in Tuscany. James Suckling (91, July 2024) found roses, violets, black cherries, and chalky tannin that still wants a year or two. Wine Advocate (91, July 2024) noted dusty tannin and dried currant. The blend is 90 percent Merlot and 10 percent Alicante. Decant 45 to 60 minutes.
